

Power through Battery

Young, energetic and with a qualification of MBA, Sukhwinder Garg could have easily grabbed a white collared job in any reputed company. But, instead of serving others, he opted to utilize his talent by setting up his own enterprise and to provide employment to the needy people.

Sukhwinder established his PMEGP unit M/s. Sparsh Battery, a battery manufacturing unit at Milapur District, Punjab by availing a bank loan from Punjab National Bank with a project cost of Rs. 10.00 lakh. His commitment and experienced team of workforce assures his processing of the right range of products that comply with the international quality, durability and functional ability. Just within four years, the turnover of his unit has doubled. He brought betterment in the socio-economic conditions of 12 employees working in the unit by providing remunerative wages.
